Privacy Policy

We at the National Parkinson Foundation (NPF) are committed to respecting the privacy of our website visitors. This page describes our privacy policy regarding the information we provide within the Parkinson's Toolkit.

Disclaimer

Scientific medicinal knowledge and standards of practice in the field of clinical medicine change rapidly. Changes in appropriate treatments and drug therapy occur often. The creators and publishers of this reference tool have provided information believed to be accurate and complete at the time of publication and in periodic review, based on reliable sources and in compliance with the standards accepted at the time. In light of changes in medical practice and the possibility of human error, neither the authors, publisher, consulting committee or any other party engaged in creation nor publication of this reference tool warrants that every aspect of information contained herein is accurate or complete. The opinions and suggestions contained herein are those of the authors and endorsed by NPF, however, readers are advised to confirm the information in this reference tool with other reliable sources of medical information, and to consult the product information sheet provided by pharmaceutical company for any medication they intend to prescribe.

Personally Identifiable Information

NPF does not require that you provide personally identifiable information in order to use the Parkinson's Toolkit. We respect your privacy and will make no attempt to identify who you are when you use the Parkinson's Toolkit. This website may store small files on your computer known as "cookies" but these will not store personally identifiable information or compromise your privacy. There are other ways that you might interact with NPF in which you will give us information that uniquely identifies you (like your e-mail address) or personally identifies you (like your name). In any place where we ask you for information that could be used to identify you, such as if you choose to donate to NPF, we will provide you with detailed and complete description of how we will use that information. Personally identifiable information will never be sold, rented or exchanged outside of NPF and its vendors bound by non-disclosure agreements unless the user is first notified and expressly consents to such transfer.

Other Issues

Please do not hesitate to contact NPF with questions, comments, or issues. You may call us at 1-800-4PD-INFO or electronically by clicking on contact us here or in the navigation bar.

Changes

NPF reserves the right to make changes to this policy without notice. Any changes to this privacy policy will be reflected in changes on this page. Please check this privacy page periodically to review any changes that may have been made.
